BIOGRAPHY

Patrick Collison, born on September 9, 1988, in Dromineer, County Tipperary, Ireland, is an influential entrepreneur best known as the co-founder and CEO of Stripe, a leading online payment processing company. Raised by Lily, a microbiologist, and Denis, an electronic engineer, Patrick grew up in a family that nurtured curiosity and intellectual pursuits. His younger brother, John Collison, would later become his business partner.

From an early age, Patrick exhibited a remarkable aptitude for technology. He began learning programming at age 10 and attended a computer course at the University of Limerick when he was just eight years old. At 16, he won the 41st Young Scientist and Technology Exhibition in 2005 with a project that involved creating a LISP-type programming language and an AI system. This early success set the stage for his future endeavors.

Patrick attended Gaelscoil Aonach Urmhumhan, a Gaelic language school, and later Castletroy College in Limerick, where he excelled academically. His exceptional talents earned him a place at the prestigious Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) in the United States. However, his time at MIT was short-lived as he left to pursue entrepreneurial ventures with his brother John.

In 2007, at the age of 19, Patrick co-founded Auctomatic, a software company that developed auction and marketplace management tools for eBay sellers. The company participated in the renowned startup accelerator Y Combinator. In 2008, Auctomatic was acquired by Live Current Media for $5 million, making the Collison brothers wealthy at a young age.

The idea for Stripe emerged from the challenges Patrick and John faced while setting up online payments for their earlier ventures. They identified a significant gap in the market for easy-to-integrate online payment solutions. In 2010, they co-founded Stripe with the aim of simplifying online payments for businesses of all sizes. They received support from Y Combinator once again.

Stripe officially launched in September 2011 and quickly gained traction due to its developer-friendly tools and seamless integration, making it easier for businesses to handle online payments. The company raised significant funding from prominent investors such as Sequoia Capital, Andreessen Horowitz, and PayPal co-founders Peter Thiel and Elon Musk. As of recent valuations, Stripe is considered one of the most valuable private companies in the world. Under Patrick's leadership, Stripe expanded internationally, offering its services in over 40 countries and powering millions of businesses globally. The company has also acquired several companies, including Paystack, Bouncer, and Indie Hackers, to enhance its product offerings and continues to innovate in financial technology with new products like Stripe Atlas, Stripe Issuing, and Stripe Treasury.

Patrick is an articulate speaker and writer, frequently sharing insights on technology, economics, and societal progress through public talks. Patrick, along with his brother John supports various philanthropic causes, particularly in science and technology. In 2020, he co-founded Fast Grants with economist Tyler Cowen, an initiative aimed at accelerating COVID-19-related scientific research by providing rapid funding to researchers. In 2021 he co-founded Arc Institute, which aims to accelerate scientific research by combining the efforts of academia, industry, and philanthropy.

In 2016, he participated in the Presidential Ambassadors for Global Entrepreneurship (PAGE) program, contributing to global entrepreneurship efforts. In 2018, Stripe contributed $1 million to California YIMBY, a pro-housing development lobbying organization, demonstrating Patrick's commitment to social issues. He also launched Stripe Climate, an initiative to help combat climate change by funding carbon removal technologies.

In 2022, Patrick married Swiss-American biochemist Silvana Konermann. He lives in San Francisco, California.

RISK PROFILE

CATEGORY	SEVERITY	DETAILS
Political Exposure	Low	As per reports, Stripe stopped processing payments for the Doland Trump campaign following the US Capitol riots in January 2021, cutting off a key source of small-dollar donations. This decision, not publicly announced by Stripe. In June 2020, Mr Patrick criticized the Chinese government's treatment of Uighurs, tweeting: "As a US business (and tech) community, I think we should be significantly clearer about our horror at, and opposition to, the atrocities being committed by the Chinese government against its own people".
Negative Press	Low	California Forever: The California Forever project is facing local opposition and caused community strife in Solano County. Despite their financial backing to the project, they are not involved in the project's daily operations or land acquisitions. BloomTech: The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau issued an order against BloomTech and CEO Austen Allred for misleading students about loan costs and inflating job placement rates. They are banned from student-lending activities, must cease certain loan collections, amend contracts, allow penalty-free withdrawals, and pay over $164,000 in penalties. Mr Patrick and Mr John are the investors in BloomTech. PlexCoin ICO: Stripe agreed to a $120,000 settlement with the Massachusetts Attorney General's office over allegations related to the fraudulent PlexCoin initial coin offering (ICO) in Sep 2020. Earlier, a grand jury indicted three Quebec residents for their roles in the PlexCoin scheme, charging them with wire fraud, securities fraud, and money laundering. Following this, the Massachusetts AG's office alleged that Stripe failed to detect and prevent PlexCoin's fraudulent activities, resulting in financial losses for Massachusetts consumers. Plaid: Mr Zachary Perret, the billionaire cofounder of Plaid, accused Stripe in a series of tweets (which have since been deleted) of meeting with Plaid under false pretenses and then using the information from those meetings to build a competing software tool.
